This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. Mr. Howells bases this story of a modern literary episode on the influences springing out of the composition and realization of a play, and their effects upon the mutual relationship of its writer, Brice Maxwell, a young journalist, and his wife. The conflict of interest arises, on the one side, from the desire of Mrs. Maxwell to be an unsuspected but effective guide to her husband's career, and from her effort to hold him to his pure, literary ideals of the drama, and, on the opposing side, from the influence, artistically debasing, upon Maxwell's work and ambition, of Launcelot Godolphin, the actor to whom is confided the production of the play.

Mrs. Ritchie continues to give us sketchy bits of the life and surroundings of her father at the time of his writing of the work, that almost invest the pages with that subtle charm that surrounds a personal confidence. They seem to bring us nearer to the author, and make his characters as real to us as they were to him when they were born in his brain. They constitute the only authoritative account that has been given us of the man whose desire was that his works, and his works only, should speak for him. The volume is embellished with several illustrations that have never before appeared in print.

Welldon, Rev. J. E. C. The hope of immortality. N. Y., The Macmillan Co., 1898. c. 7+350 p. D. cl., $1.50. [2006

The substance of an argument put forward in the Hulsean Lectures for 1896. It deals with the nature of the belief in immortality, the history and value of the belief. There are chapters also giving external and internal evidences of the belief and on the Christian amplification of the belief. While scholarly, the essay is also popular.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 25, 1898.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

LESSONS OF THE FAILURE OF REFORM IN THE ENGLISH BOOK TRADE.

THE PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION of England has at last officially notified the Associated Booksellers that, after careful consideration, it has regretfully come to the conclusion that the scheme for regulating discounts, proposed by the booksellers last year, has been found impracticable. This conclusion is based on the fact that the scheme failed to receive the assent of the Society of Authors, who objected to its coercive clause, and also to its not seeming to have the practically unanimous support of the trade itself.

The Associated Booksellers must now retrace their steps and begin at a point where they and their American cousins ought to have begun long ago. That is, they must first learn to rely upon themselves individually; having learned this thoroughly, they may concentrate their efforts and energies upon completing and consolidating their local organizations before they can hope for any material change in their present unsatisfactory condition. If the English bookseller had learned the first lesson well, and could have been relied upon as a body to agree on a certain course of action, an appeal to the publisher in this matter would have been unnecessary, for under present conditions it is no concern of publishers, really, at what price books are sold. The truth of the matter seems to be that the booksellers went to the publishers because they could not agree among themselves. They wanted a suggestion to help them out of an awkward difficulty. And now, instead of being helped, they are sent back to do that which they have already admitted they cannot do.

Furthermore, the bookseller must learn that he can never hope to maintain his position by means of coercive measures. Laws which restrict individual action in business are doomed to failure the moment they are enacted. The bookselling trade has no more reason for being a protected trade than any other trade. So long as we have the principle of liberty ruling in our commercial affairs, so long we shall have competition, and so long will the weak and the unfit go to the wall. Sumptuary laws cannot inject enterprise into the lax and indifferent merchant, nor change the stupid or ignorant one into a man of intelligence and foresight.

The trouble in the book trade lies deeper than the discount question. It has its seat in the inflated retail price. Any measures looking towards reform must take that into consideration. Tinkering with the "discount question" is simply doctoring the symptoms and leaving the seat of the disease in statu quo. And, furthermore, tinkering the symptoms will only raise new difficulties or bring back the old ones in new forms, so that the trouble will rise to be met over and over again.

CHANGES IN THE FIRM OF LEE & SHEPARD.

THE report of the change in the firm of Lee & Shepard is now officially confirmed by the definite announcement that E. Fleming & Co., the well-known Boston bookbinders, have purchased the entire right and title to the business of Lee & Shepard, William Lee retiring.

The firm-name will be continued, and there is no immediate prospect of a change of locality. Warren F. Gregory, heretofore manager of the Educational Department, has been placed in charge as general manager. Charles I. Shepard and Frederick D. Irish continue in immediate charge of the details of the business, and the various employees will also remain in the same capacities. The business of the house will be energetically continued along the lines of general publishing, with standard juvenile literature as a specialty.

In the withdrawal of Mr. Lee from the firm of Lee & Shepard the New England book trade loses one of its oldest, if not the oldest, member—one who has been active in its service for sixty years.

William Lee was born at the "North End" of Boston, April 17, 1826. At the age of eleven he was offered a situation in the old bookstore of Samuel G. Drake, then located at 56 Cornhill. Mr. Drake, the father of Colonel Drake, the popular author, was himself a famous "bookworm" familiar with the authorities and history of Boston, and in after-life achieved a reputation as an author. In his employ Mr. Lee was thoroughly grounded in the mysteries of the profession of bookselling—showing himself an apt scholar, a patient worker, and a businessman gifted with indomitable will and ambition.

After serving with Drake for three years young Lee passed two years at school in the country. Returning to Boston he again entered the book business, and, when nineteen years of age, he became clerk in the then flourishing publishing house of Phillips & Sampson, located on Winter Street, his salary being $450 a year. He took advantage of every opportunity for extending his knowledge of every detail of the business, and was soon looked upon by his employers as their "best" clerk. Selling by auction, especially in the evening, was at that time a leading feature of the trade, and William Lee soon became an expert in that way, as those may remember who frequented the trade sales at Leavitt's in the days gone by. But he did not neglect his training in other directions, and kept himself posted on the character and contents of the books in stock, in order that he might speak intelligently of them to his customers.

At the age of twenty-one Mr. Lee was allowed a share in the business, and three years later he became an equal partner in the firm. When it is remembered that Phillips & Sampson at that time stood foremost as publishers in the East, the fact that at the age of twenty-four one of their clerks was admitted to an equal partnership certainly gives evidence that the one so favored was a man of no ordinary quality.

In the firm of Phillips, Sampson & Co. Mr. Lee continued a partner for seven years, and to his energy and industry the house during that period was much indebted for its prosperity. For twelve and sometimes fifteen hours a day he remained faithfully at his round of duty. But nature at last claimed her debt. In 1857 Mr. Lee's health gave way, and he was ordered by his physicians to relinquish all cares of business. He sold his interest to his partners for $65,000, taking the notes of the firm for that amount. After a few months' travel in his own country he sailed for Europe in June, 1858, with Willard Small, now a bookseller in Boston, with the intention of spending five years on the Continent He visited England, Germany, Belgium, Spain, and France. While he was in Paris an incident happened, the recollection of which in after days proved quite as amusing as it was annoying at the time. It was during the excitement subsequent to the Orsini affair. Mr. Lee always wore a long beard, and in his travels wore a soft broad-brimmed hat One day, while walking about the streets, he was arrested and taken to the Palais de Justice. Explanations and expostulations proved unavailing. The prisoner was declared to be a "red" republican, and that, in those days, was no trifling matter. It was only after the production of a passport and the intervention of the United States consul, who succeeded in proving that the accused was a black Republican and not a red one, that the authorities were induced to release their captive.

While in Paris, and on the point of making a second trip to Spain, Mr. Lee received the tidings of the death of his former partners, Messrs. Phillips and Sampson, and of the collapse of their firm. The panic of 1857 had made sad havoc with the book trade generally, and those who weathered the storm were sorely pressed. Phillips, Sampson & Co. met with heavy losses, but struggled on in the hopes of recovering themselves. But in 1859 the sudden deaths of the senior members of the firm paralyzed its prosperity, and the worst quickly followed.

Mr. Lee had received no warning of the impending calamity, and for the moment was entirely overcome by the announcement. However, he realized what it implied, and shortly returned to Boston to find himself a heavy loser by the disaster. Undaunted, he gathered up what remained of his fortune, and in February, 1860, he became a member of the firm of Crosby, Nichols & Co., which had purchased many of the plates of the late firm of Phillips, Sampson & Co. The firm became Crosby, Nichols, Lee & Co.; but, owing to the long stagnation of trade, succeeded by losses in the Southern States caused by the political troubles of those days, it did not prosper, and at the close of the year Mr. Lee withdrew from the business without a dollar that he could call his own.

While walking down Washington Street one day shortly after he had withdrawn from the firm of Crosby, Nichols, Lee & Co., Mr. Lee met his friend of former days, Charles A. B. Shepard, whose firm of Shepard, Clark & Brown had also been swept away in the aftermath of the panic of '57. On comparing notes, it appeared that both had an equally small share of cash capital. At a meeting in the evening of the same day affairs were again candidly and earnestly discussed, and plans laid to form the firm that in a short time was to take a place in the foremost rank of the book trade.

On February 1, 1861, the sign of Lee & Shepard appeared on the walls of a very old, two-storied wooden building, known as the "Chelsea Dye-House," on Washington Street, opposite the Old South Meeting-House. The building first occupied by Lee & Shepard is perhaps better known to the present generation as the site of the "Old South Clothing House." Occupying the oldest building in Boston, the new firm facetiously advertised as "the oldest house in Boston." A more unpropitious time to start in business, with absolutely no capital, but brain, muscle, energy, integrity, ambition, and friends, could hardly be imagined. The new firm attended to their own bookkeeping, did their own buying and selling, tied up their own bundles, and packed up and shipped the cases. Early and late they shouldered their tasks and pushed ahead. In a short time they had won the confidence of the public by their intelligent and prompt service. After three years thus spent Lee & Shepard removed to a new store at 149 Washington Street, where they remained until the destructive fire in November of 1872, in which they lost nearly a quarter of a million of dollars. Early in 1873 they began afresh in a building that had just been erected at the southeast corner of Franklin and Hawley Streets. In January, 1885, they removed to 10 Milk Street, adjoining the "Old South."

When Lee & Shepard started in the "Chelsea Dye-House" it was simply as booksellers, and for some time they had no thought of making books themselves. One day Mr. Shepard chanced to make a social call on Samuel C. Perkins, who had been associated with Phillips, Sampson & Co., and had come into possession of some stereotype plates.

During the conversation Mr. Perkins recalled the fact and asked Mr. Shepard to take them off his hands. The plates included those of Oliver Optic's Boat Club Series, in six volumes, and those of the Riverside Series, in twelve volumes. Mr. Lee agreed with his partner to buy the plates, and the firm at once issued a new edition of both series. They met with a quick sale, and from that time the Oliver Optic books become an important branch of their business.

Among the other successful writers whom Lee & Shepard brought into notice was Miss Rebecca I. Clark, better known by her pseudonym of "Sophie May," whose first book, "Little Prudy," achieved a success not surpassed by that of Miss Alcott's "Little Women."

Lee & Shepard's catalogue embraces the names of many authors who rank high in American literature. Among the more prominent may be named the Rev. Asa Bullard, Prof. James D. Mille, the Rev. Elijah Kellogg, the author of many bright and wholesome stories for youth; J. T. Trowbridge, "Petroleum V. Nasby," whom Lincoln termed the third power in crushing the Rebellion; Charles Sumner, the edition of whose works, published by this firm, was thought worthy of award at the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition; Francis H. Underwood, one of the most genial and scholarly of American writers, who first suggested the Atlantic Monthly; Col. Thomas Wentworth Higginson, B. P. Shillaber ("Mrs. Partington"), Henry Wood, Miss Amanda M. Douglas, and others of almost equal popularity.

The firm was radical during the years when American ideas were being shaped and fought for, and had the courage to publish the works of Charles Sumner when no one else could be found to publish them. The writings of Horace Mann, Wendell Phillips, William Whiting, Rev. Charles Beecher, and other writers of this stamp who have spoken boldly for the rights of man also bore the imprint of Lee & Shepard.

They were the first to publish in separate form favorite songs and poems with appropriate illustrations—an idea that was at once taken up by a number of other publishing houses. These were issued first in cloth binding, and afterwards in the Golden Floral style. In the latter attractive dress the series proved immensely popular, and thousands of copies were sold every season. This series was followed by the equally popular illustrated books by Miss Jerome, of which "One Year's Sketch-Book" has been declared to be without a rival in its own field, which is also true of Miss Miner's "Orchids," published by this house.

Mr. Shepard died in January, 1889.* Since that time Mr. Lee has held the laboring oar—working steadily and ceaselessly. Indeed we believe that it is strictly within the truth that Mr. Lee during the thirty-seven years that he was connected with the firm of Lee & Shepard allowed himself hardly a week's vacation. He has therefore richly earned respite from work; and though his withdrawal will be regretted by all with whom he has so long been associated, he takes with him the assurances of their love and esteem, and also their best wishes for his future.

NEW POSTAGE STAMPS AND REGULATIONS.

THE new Omaha Exposition stamps were placed on sale at the General Post-Office on the 18th inst. They are known as the "Trans-Mississippi Series," and are to commemorate the holding of the Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha during this summer and fall. They are of the following denominations: 1, 2, 4, 5, 8, 10, and 50 cents, and $1 and $2. The stamps are about the same in size as the Columbian stamps, the engraved space being seven-eighths of an inch in width and one and three-eighths in length. The designs, mostly from paintings, are all scenes of the development of the region beyond the Mississippi. They are not intended to supersede the ordinary stamps now in use, but purchasers may have their choice. The series will be issued until December 31.

The use of newspapers and periodical postage stamps will be discontinued after July 1. From that date postmasters will collect in money the postage on second-class matter mailed in bulk by publishers and news agents and will give receipts therefor. The periodical stamps were really receipts for the convenience of postmasters. They were not affixed to the matter mailed, but stamps to the amount of second-class postage were pasted in a receipt-book kept by the postmaster. These stamps were not supposed to leave the hands of the postmaster. They were the cause of much litigation between the United States and philatelists. In June, 1897, the United States Marshal in New York City, acting under the direction of the District-Attorney, seized a quantity of periodical stamps in the possession of The Walter Scott Stamp and Coin Company on the ground that the company must have come into the possession of them illegally. In a suit to recover them before Judge Lacombe, in the United States Circuit Court, it was shown that the Government had sold a quantity of them prior to 1877 to stamp collectors, and that they could be purchased without violation of the law up to 1890. Judge Lacombe ordered the return of the stamps.

Postmaster-General Smith has made several changes in the postal regulations. While the postal card will continue to be sold, it will be lawful to use cards with a one-cent stamp affixed for the same purpose. These cards must be approximately of the same size, shape, and color as the postal card. When these mailing cards are sent to foreign countries the ordinary letter postage must be affixed.

Another change in the regulations prohibits the return or forwarding of second, third, and fourth class matter until additional postage has been affixed. When it is obvious, however, that valuables are contained in such packages, the sender shall be notified if possible. On second-class matter one cent for four ounces must be paid before it will be returned or forwarded.

OBITUARY NOTES.

BENJAMIN F. DUMONT, one of the most widely known law-book salesmen in the country, and for many years connected with the Edward Thompson Company, of Northport, N. Y., died of pneumonia in Harrisburg, Pa., June 11.

SIR EDWARD BURNE-JONES, the famous artist, died in London, June 17. He was born in Birmingham in August, 1833, and for many years has stood practically at the head of the English romantic school of painting. He was the last of the inner circle of Pre-Raphaelites, that included Rossetti and William Morris, who were the founders of the Oxford and Cambridge Magazine, and the supporters of The Germ.

GEORGE CALVIN HORTON, of the firm of Rowley & Horton, booksellers, of Utica, N. Y., died in that city May 30. Mr. Horton was born in Sandisfield, Mass., July 10, 1843, and in 1849 was taken by his parents to Herkimer, N. Y., in the public schools of which and at Whitestown Seminary he was educated. For eight years he taught school, but removed to Utica in 1869, and became a member of the firm of Rowley Brothers & Co. In 1878 H. C. Rowley removed to Springfield, and the firm-style was changed to and has ever since been Rowley & Horton. Mr. Horton was a member of the Commercial Travelers' Mutual Accident Association of America, of Imperial Council, R. A., of the Imperial Relief, the Oneida Historical Society, and the Utica Chamber of Commerce. He was also a member of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, and had been a deacon since 1880.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM has received from the University of Western Pennsylvania the degree of Doctor of Letters.

CHARLES G. LELAND, though in his seventy-fourth year, has ready for the press several volumes: a collection of Tuscan tales on the lines of his "Legends of Florence;" a collection of new poems to be called "Songs of Sorcery and Ballads of Witchcraft;" a collection of new and translated sketches to be called "Wayside Wanderers;" a new work on the minor arts; a manual to be called "The Simplest Musical Instruments and How to Make Them;" an essay on self-hypnotism to be called "Have You a Strong Will?;" and a collection of countryside legends concerning Virgil.

CAPTAIN CHARLES KING, now Brigadier-General King, has exchanged the pen for the sword, and is now serving under General Merritt. General King was born in Albany, N. Y., in 1844. His father, Rufus King, a grandson and namesake of one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, was for some years Minister Resident at Rome, and later editor and proprietor of the Milwaukee Sentinel. Thus it came that young King's boyhood was spent in the growing West. In 1858 he was sent to New York City to be educated at the Columbia Grammar School. In 1861 he was entered as a freshman at Columbia College. Within twenty-four hours after he had passed his examination the sixteen-year-old Charles turned up in Washington, D. C., in the camp of the Wisconsin Volunteers, of which his father commanded a brigade. He was made an orderly at his father's headquarters, and so saw his first real soldiering in Virginia. In 1862 he was appointed to West Point. He was graduated four years later, distinguishing himself as an instructor at West Point and elsewhere in various staff positions. In 1874–76 he was in Arizona under General W. Merritt as an officer of the Fifth Cavalry in the campaign against the Apaches. On November 1, 1874, King was dangerously wounded at Sunset Pass. In June, 1879, having meanwhile been promoted Captain of Troop A, King was retired for "disability resulting from wounds received in line of duty." After this he was for two years one of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin. In 1882 he began his literary career by publishing "The Colonel's Daughter," a story of garrison life in the West. This has been followed by over twenty stories, all of high standard.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE PUBLISHING SECTION of the American Library Association has just issued, through the Library Bureau, Boston, a second revised and enlarged edition of the "List of Subject Headings for Use in Dictionary Catalogues, prepared by a committee of the A. L. A.," the first edition of which appeared in 1895. The special feature of the new edition is an appendix containing hints on subject cataloguing and schemes for arrangement of large subjects, as countries, the Bible, Shakespeare, etc. The work has proved its usefulness as a tool for bibliographers and cataloguers, and the reissue has been made in response to urgent demands. (6+206 p. 8°, cl., $2.)

THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION, Washington, D. C., has published a "Review and Bibliography of the Metallic Carbides," by J. A. Mathews. The author's general plan has been "to give a condensed account of the methods of preparation, physical and chemical properties of the carbides not known, considering them in alphabetical order." Following each descriptive portion are the references to the literature bearing thereon. The titles of original papers are in most cases given in full, that the scope of the article may be judged therefrom. Minor articles and abstracts are also largely given; in this way the value of the bibliography is increased to those who have not ready access to extensive reference libraries, since the same matter is referred to as given in various publications, to one or another of which most chemists have access. (Smithsonian Miscellaneous Collections, 1090. 32 p. 8°.)

THE CORNELL UNIVERSITY LIBRARY, Ithaca, N. Y., has issued the first part of the "Catalogue of the Dante Collection presented by Willard Fiske," compiled by Theodore W. Koch. The catalogue will be completed in three parts. Part I. comprises the list of Dante's works, in the original and in translation; Part II., already printing, will comprise works on Dante; and Part III. will contain a supplement, an index of subjects, and an appendix on the Iconography of Dante. A preface, an account by Mr. Fiske of the making of the collection, and bibliographical explanations will be furnished with the final title-page and table of contents for the completed work. When Mr. Fiske began sending Dante books to Cornell in 1893, the present catalogue was begun as a mere finding list. The plan was to give brief entries only of those works already fully treated in Mr. Lane's catalogue of the "Dante Collections in the Harvard College and Boston Public Libraries," and to make references to the latter for all information helpful to the student. But soon the Cornell collection outnumbered the Harvard literature in volumes, and it was thought advisable to have a representative catalogue. The plan was entirely changed and the catalogue put into new hands. The scheme widened until it was decided to include in the catalogue all pertinent articles in periodical and general literature contained in the University library whether they were on the Dante shelves or elsewhere. This idea threw the work into the hands of the final editor, Mr. Koch, who for some years had been working upon an index to the periodical literature of Dante. It was found practicable to combine the entries of book and periodical literature, and the result makes the present work more of a bibliography than a catalogue of a special collection. More titles are brought together than have ever appeared in any one Dante catalogue or bibliography, and no pains have been spared to make the work accurate and trustworthy. It is intended specially to prove of service to distant students of Dante, but it has a practical value as a catalogue for second-hand booksellers, collectors, and libraries, that should enable the University to find in a piece of work of which it may be justly proud an enduring source of income. (iv+91 p. 4°, pap., $1.)

B. HERDER, of Vienna, Austria, has just issued a "General Catalogue of Current Periodicals kept on file in the Universities, reference libraries, technical high schools, schools of agriculture, and the Commercial and Naval Academies of Austria,"* compiled by order of the Minister of Education, under the direction of Dr. Ferdinand Grassauer. A system of exchange obtains between the various libraries of the Austrian dominions, and the plan at first proposed was to make complete catalogues of their contents to facilitate the interchange of scientific books. It soon developed that such catalogues would be expensive and would include much matter very seldom needed. The periodical literature of a scientific character is most in demand for study, and it was thought that the best beginning of cataloguing would be to get this all alphabetted and classified in one volume. Under the name of periodicals are included all publications that appear at longer or shorter intervals, such as all scientific, political, and literary journals, the proceedings of legal corporations, publications of learned and other societies; but parts of works to be concluded in a given time are not listed as periodical publications. The titles of the works are entered as they appear upon the original issue, the first editor or publisher being specified, and not changed except when some editor of great importance has taken charge of the publication. A catchword entry with reference to the regular title is included in the alphabetical catalogue. This is followed by a subject index, and a list of editors referring to the pages of alphabetical record. The catalogue covers 803 large octavo pages, closely printed, and is a monument of three years of untiring labor. It was discovered that the Royal University of Vienna contains many periodicals no other institution possesses, and these have been catalogued separately, as well as in the general list, to bring them prominently before the other universities. It is hoped the catalogue may be found so useful that it will be sufficiently supported to enable the editors to revise it from time to time and keep it thoroughly up to date.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM ARMITAGE HARPER, a son of the late Joseph W. Harper, of the firm of Harper & Brothers, on the 18th inst., before leaving for San Francisco to assume his duties as a member of General Merritt's staff, announced to his friends his marriage to Miss Olive C. Chamberlain, daughter of the late John F. Chamberlain, Washington's most famous hotel proprietor. The wedding was performed in New York City on February 12 last, and was known to only a few of Captain Harper's most intimate friends.

NOW that the completion of the Dictionary of the Brothers Grimm is, comparatively speaking, near at hand, the son of one of the brothers—Hermann Grimm—urges (in the June Rundschau) the necessity of a new German dictionary which should have its birthplace not at Berlin, but at Weimar, in the halls of the Goethe-Schiller-Archiv, and whose makers should proceed, not like Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm, from Gothic, Old, and Middle High German forms, but from the language of the present time. The first task of this new dictionary would be to give permanence to the language of Goethe, since a large proportion of it was inaccessible to the Grimm brothers, "the insufficiency of whose German Dictionary, begun fifty years ago, is universally felt."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

An English translation of one of the most characteristic stories of this writer whose style has been spoken of as "Perfection in grace, the extreme flowering of the Latin genius." CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

PUBLISH TO-DAY

THE KING'S JACKAL By RICHARD HARDING DAVIS.

With illustrations and a cover design by Charles Dana Gibson. 12mo, $1.25.

A large first edition has been exhausted by the advance orders and a second is now in press.

It is evident that Mr. Davis's new novel will rival in popularity his very successful "Soldiers of Fortune," published a year ago and now in its fifty-fifth thousand. The present dramatic story is the tale of an exiled king and his plot to re-establish his financial fortunes. The scene is laid at Tangier, the hero is a newspaper correspondent and the real heroine a beautiful American heiress, and the book is probably the author's strongest production thus far.

THIRD VOLUME, COMPLETING THE SET:

AN ILLUSTRATED FLORA

Of the Northern United States, Canada, and the British Possessions, from Newfoundland to the parallel of the southern boundary of Virginia, and from the Atlantic Ocean westward to the 102d meridian, and including the State of Nebraska, thus covering all the Northern portion of the Great Plains. By NATHANIEL LORD BRITTON, Ph.D., and Hon. ADDISON BROWN. In 3 volumes. Imperial octavo, with over four thousand cuts. The set, $9.00, transportation extra.

Those already having Vols. I. and II. can obtain Vol. III. for $3.00 special net, postage 36 cents extra.

Vol. I. "Ferns to Carpet Weed." 612 pages. Vol. II. "Portulaca to Gentian." 644 pages. Vol. III. "Dogbane to Thistle." 588 pages.

The completion of this great work is a most important event in the world of scientific literature. Figuring as it does every species in the section covered, it is undoubtedly "the best work ever issued on the flora of any part of the United States."

TO BE PUBLISHED DURING JULY

A Volume on Manila.

By JOSEPH EARLE STEVENS. With 31 illustrations, largely from photographs by the author. 12mo. In Press.

This is a most interesting account of what promises to be our first colonial possession. The author knows all about life in the Philippines, and his graphic descriptions are well supplemented by the admirable illustrations. Every American will want to know about this far-off land which may some day be sending Senators and Representatives to our Congress.

A History of Modern Europe

By FERDINAND SCHWILL, Ph.D. 8vo, 400 pages. In Press.

This work fills a gap in historical literature often remarked upon, it being the only single volume in which is traced the course of events in Europe since the Italian Renaissance. The work contains many maps, bibliographies and genealogical tables, and will prove an invaluable aid to systematic study, either as a text-book in high schools and colleges, or among general students.

English Prose Masterpieces

By J. SCOTT CLARK. 12mo, about 600 pages. In Press.

This unique book presents a "scientific method" of studying the great writers. It is a study of rather than about the masters of English prose, with analyses of the styles of Bacon, Milton, Bunyan, Defoe, Swift, Addison, Steele, Burke, Johnson, Goldsmith, Lamb, De Quincey, Macaulay, Carlyle, Scott, Dickens, George Eliot, Ruskin, Irving, Hawthorne, Emerson, Lowell, Holmes, etc.

Social Elements

By CHARLES R. HENDERSON, Ph.D. 8vo, 400 pages. In Press.

The author has here made a careful analysis of the social conditions existing in representative centres of the United States, pointing out the most profitable methods of sociological study and the means at hand with which to improve the general situation.

Psychology for Teachers

By C. LLOYD MORGAN. Crown 8vo, $1.00, net.

"A book which all teachers should read. . . . One of the most interesting, helpful, and stimulating books for teachers which we have read for many a day."—Journal of Education.

The "Republic" of Plato

Edited by WILLIAM LOWE BRYAN, Ph.D. 12mo. In Press.
